Cops: Drug deal gone bad leaves two brothers dead

Drugs believed to be root cause behind murders of two brothers inside an Overbrook home Tuesday night ◗ Search on for shooter of 13-year-old and 17-year-old known in area for being respectful kids

▶ A white teddy bear near the shrubs of a house in the background marked the murder scene.

A fatal double shooting Tuesday night of victims Rohan "Sonny" Bennett, 13, and his brother, Christopher Malcolm, 17, rocked the quiet Overbrook Park neighborhood. But police, citing cash, prescription drugs and four handguns recovered from the family home on Westbury Drive, said the tragedy was likely a drug deal gone bad.

"We now know that an unidentified male went to this property, which does have a drug nexus to it, with the intention of making some type of drug transaction," Homicide Capt. James Clark said. "Once he was led into the property, he was having some type of discussion with the two teenagers. Something, at that point, triggered the chain of events where he pulled out a gun."

Clark said Malcolm was shot several times in the living room around 7:30 p.m. and died at the hospital. The gunman then opened fire on Bennett as he tried to run away. The 13-year-old staggered into the basement, where he succumbed to his injuries. The shooter, a man with a light complexion wearing a blue T-shirt, was seen fleeing the property with a large bag.

Neighbors unilaterally described the area as "peaceful" and expressed disbelief at the grisly crime. But police said that at least two people on the block did know that drugs were allegedly being sold from the home — the boys' parents, who are in police custody being questioned, along with a family friend who identified himself as the boys' cousin.

The lion's share of 1,700 pills in the house were found in the parents' bedroom, according to police. Detectives also recovered a small amount of hydroponic marijuana, four handguns and $102,000 from the same area of the home.

Teen victims did 'things kids do'

The majority of mourners, who filed somberly up and down the front steps of the home, where a small memorial of handwritten notes and toys was steadily growing yesterday, said they had a hard time reconciling the portrait painted by police with their own knowledge of the children.

"They were just nice kids, very respectful," neighbor Crystal Copeland said. "I would see them out here riding bikes, doing things kids do. It's something you would never expect."

Police said it is too early to determine the extent of each family member's involvement, but that based on the crime scene, it did appear the boys were part of the operation. Charges against the parents are likely, according to Clark. METRO/AW

Contest looks to award Philly's 'worst lot' title

PHILADELPHIA. In a city where blighted and vacant lots number in the tens of thousands, residents now have a chance to nominate the worst lot as part of a contest.

The Best/Worst Lot Contest is sponsored by a coalition called Take Back Vacant Land, which includes Action United, civic organizations and faith-based groups trying to shed light on the problem. The groups are in favor of proposed legislation in City Council that would create a land bank.

The groups wants the legislation to be re-introduced in the fall with changes to strengthen transparency and accountability and outline who gets land and for what, especially in "hot" neighborhoods.

According to a release, the contest will run now through Aug. 31. Entry is free.

Bandit steals old lady's savings

CENTER CITY. Police are looking for a man who allegedly stole an elderly woman's purse containing $2,700 at a downtown CVS.

The incident happened on July 13. The victim, who is 75 years old, had just left the bank where she had withdrawn $2,700 from her savings account. While she was inside the CVS at 1826 Chestnut Street, the suspect began following her in the store. When the woman stepped away from her cart to look at an item, the suspect pulled the cart with him, snatched the woman's purse containing the money and her identification and took off.

OLNEY. A car accident early yesterday quickly turned into a homicide investigation when investigators discovered that the driver had been stabbed.

Police said a young man was driving a black GMC when he crashed into a pole, then a building on the 400 block of West Duncannon Avenue around 12:20 a.m. According to multiple reports, the property he smashed into was a church. The victim, whose identity has not been released, died shortly after 1 a.m. Authorities found that he had been stabbed twice in the chest prior to the crash.

State's voter ID law tangles in court and Pa. legislature

▶ Polling places could be emptier in Philadelphia this November.

BEKARD LARMA/METRO

Philly woman leading class action lawsuit against 'strict' requirements now mandated at PA polling places 186,000 city voters could be denied ballots

Pennsylvania's new voter-identification law is unnecessary and will unduly burden the poor and elderly, a lawyer for a great-great-grandmother who is challenging the statute told a judge.

Viviette Applewhite, 93, is the lead plaintiff in a lawsuit filed in May by the American Civil Liberties Union. Applewhite, who once marched for civil rights with Martin Luther King Jr., said she won't be able to vote in November under the law, which requires a photo ID to obtain a ballot. A weeklong hearing in the case, which includes nine other Pennsylvania voters, began yesterday in Commonwealth Court in Harrisburg.

"The integrity of the electoral process is not enhanced by turning away people at the ballot box," David Gersch, an attorney for the petitioners with the law firm Arnold & Porter LLP in Washington, told Judge Robert E. Simpson. "Voting is not a privilege. It's a right. Why is it that we need all these hoops? It's really not necessary. It's harassment."

Winning margin for President Barack Obama, a Democrat, in Pennsylvania with 55 percent of the vote in 2008, fewer than the number who may be barred from the polls on Nov. 6.

The ACLU is asking Simpson to block the law pending a final court decision. Pennsylvania, one of nine states that passed strict laws requiring a photo ID to vote, has become a test case in the voter eligibility debate after a tally by the state suggested as much as 9 percent of its electorate may be denied a ballot in the presidential election.

"The voter ID debate was already ignited nationally but there is certainly heightened attention to Pennsylvania and Wisconsin because they are potentially swing states," said Daniel Tokaji, a Ohio State University law professor.

Simpson said he will issue a ruling the week of Aug. 13.

"There will be a lot of people unhappy with the decision, no matter what I do," Simpson said to a packed courtroom. "Take heart, I'm not the last level in this matter. I'm just the way station until we get to the Supreme Court." BLOOMBERG

Difference between victory and defeat

Voter ID laws could be the difference between victory and defeat in November, Tokaji said. "If you've got a very close vote in a particular state, an ID law could make the difference by disproportionately burdening certain groups of voters," Tokaji said.

Turnout for the presidential election in Philadelphia will be high, as will the stakes and emotions, lawyers for the city said in papers filed in the ACLU's case. Obama won 83 percent of the city's vote in 2008. Philadelphia will suffer "financially, politically and in important matters of policy" if significant numbers of its residents are disenfranchised, the city said. "The delays and conflicts the photo ID law will create at the polls may impede or block the ability of city voters to cast their votes, regardless whether their identification passes muster under the law," lawyers for the city said in a friend-of-the court brief filed in the case.

Kenney: 'Hit the road' Chik-fil-A

CITY HALL. City Councilman Jim Kenney yesterday sent a letter to fast food chain Chik-fil-A president Dan Cathy in response to Cathy's recent comments supporting "traditional marriage."

"As an American, you are legally entitled to your opinion, regardless of how insensitive and intolerant it may be," the letter read. "But as a fellow American and an elected member of Philadelphia City Council, I am entitled to express my opinion as well. So please — take a hike and take your intolerance with you."

Kenney said that he plans to introduce a resolution during City Council's next session condemning Cathy and Chik-fil-A for their "expression of intolerance and hate."

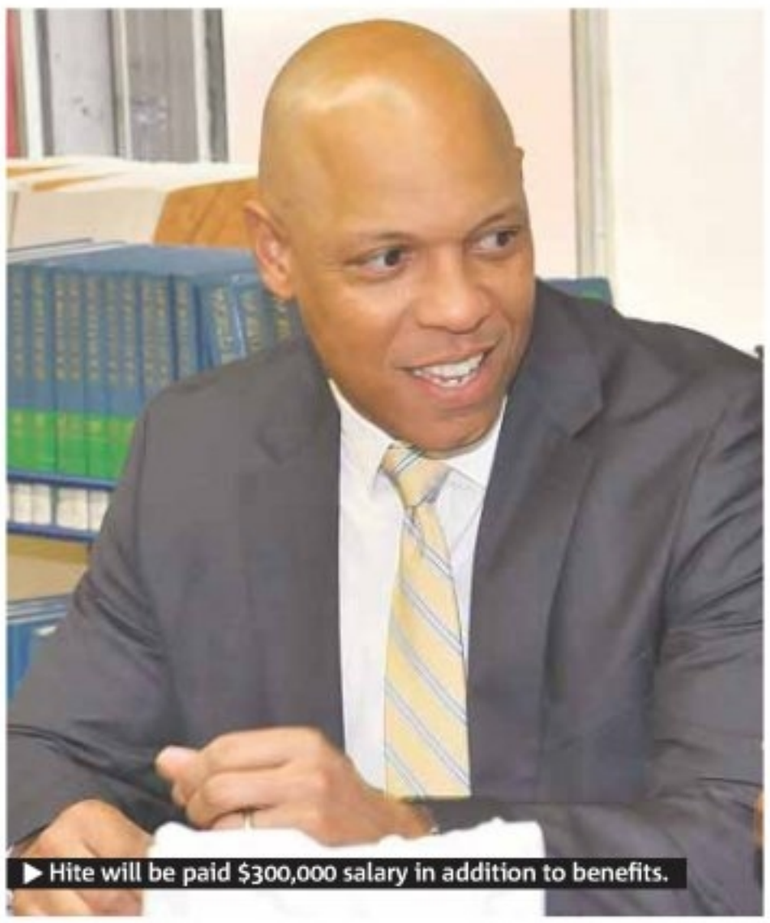
School district inks new superintendent for $300K



▶ Hite will be paid $300,000 salary in addition to benefits.

The Philadelphia School Reform Commission yesterday approved a contract for superintendent William Hite that will pay him $300,000 annually.

Hite, 51, was selected last month to replace Arlene Ackerman. He will be charged with bringing some stability to a district that has 249 schools, an estimated 146,000 students, a $2.5 billion budget and has dealt with mind-boggling deficits over the last few years that have led to massive layoffs and school closures.

Hite will be tardy for the start of the school year, beginning the job full-time Oct. 1 as he finishes his commitment as superintendent of Prince George's County Public Schools in Maryland. Until then, Hite will work two days per week and get paid a daily rate.

"That's a really heavy lift and its starting to become heavy already," Hite said yesterday about the transition in a telephone interview. Although he would like to be more involved in plans for school openings, Hite said he plans to be here for the first day of school.

"I plan to be present for first day of school in Philadelphia so I'll get to see first-hand the opening and how well staff can execute on that," he said.

Hite's contract

- The contract requires Hite to establish residency in Philadelphia within four months. The district will reimburse him up to $22,500 for his relocation expenses and legal fees related to negotiating the contract.
- If Hite is fired with cause, the district will not be responsible to pay his salary beyond the date of termination. Ackerman infamously walked away with a $905,000 buyout package.
- The district will also pay for a $1 million life insurance policy, and he receives five weeks vacation annually.
- The contract also includes $25,000 annually to be paid to a retirement fund.

As superintendent in Prince George's County, Hite had a salary of $250,000. While he will get a nice raise, it will be less than the $325,000 Ackerman received when she was hired in 2008. The five-year contract includes a performance bonus worth up to $60,000 after the second year, but does not feature a retention bonus.

SOLOMON D. LEACH

Familiar with Philadelphia

A native of Virginia, Hite has a master's degree in educational leadership from the University of Virginia, and a bachelor's degree and doctorate in educational leadership from Virginia Tech. He spent summers in Philadelphia as a child visiting his uncle, who lived in the Germantown area.

Protest over California shooting turns violent

JONATHAN GIBBY/GETTY IMAGES

▶ A protester is taken into custody during a demonstration to show outrage for the fatal police shooting of Manuel Angel Diaz.

Police in the southern Californian city of Anaheim made 24 arrests Tuesday night when violence broke out at a protest by more than 600 people over the police shooting of an apparently unarmed man.

A half-dozen storefronts were smashed in a working-class neighborhood surrounding City Hall in what was the second major clash between police and demonstrators since an officer shot dead a suspected gang member in Anaheim on Saturday afternoon.

Dozens of officers wielding night sticks faced off against the demonstrators, who at one point threw water bottles and rocks towards the police line.

Some protesters threw patio chairs through the windows of a Starbucks, according to a Reuters witness. At least five other businesses had windows smashed.

Twenty adults and four juveniles were arrested on Tuesday night and yesterday morning, Anaheim Police Sergeant Mike Bustamante said.

Officers toting shotguns stood guard in front of the storefronts after the violence.

Police in Anaheim made 24 arrests Tuesday night when violence broke out at a protest.

One person was injured and taken to hospital, Anaheim Police Sergeant Bob Dunn said. Information on the person's condition was not immediately available.

The mayor of Anaheim, Tom Tait, called on Monday for a state and federal review of the shooting of suspected gang member Manuel Diaz. Diaz was the fifth person to die in Anaheim in a shooting involving police this year.

Dunn said the Diaz shooting occurred after two officers tried to approach three men in an alley. The men fled but officers caught up with one suspect who was shot by an officer. Diaz was found not to have been carrying a gun. REUTERS

Amtrak plans $7B upgrade of DC station

WASHINGTON. Amtrak, the U.S. passenger rail service, plans a $7 billion expansion of Washington, D.C.'s Union Station with the goal of making it a high-speed rail and commercial hub, Amtrak said yesterday.

The proposal calls for doubling the number of trains that can be handled at the crowded site, the second-busiest Amtrak station in the United States, Amtrak said in a statement.

The plan also proposes 3 million square feet in commercial, retail and residential development at the site just north of the U.S. Capitol.

Amtrak has said an upgrade at Union Station would include six new high-speed tracks. The lines could cut travel times between Washington and New York City to 94 minutes, about one-third faster than Amtrak's current Acela trains. REUTERS

U.S. District Judge James Teilborg in Phoenix heard arguments today on a request by three doctors for an order preventing that part of the statute from being enforced while they seek a ruling that it's preempted by the U.S. Supreme Court's 1973 Roe v. Wade decision. BLOOMBERG

Accused killer no easy fit for mass murderer profile

Unless James Holmes chooses to say why he went on the lethal shooting spree he is accused of, the analyses offered by forensic psychiatrists, based on their study of mass murders, may be as close as we get.

From what is known of the attack and his life so far, experts say Holmes was probably not suffering from as serious a mental illness as Jared Loughner, who was diagnosed with paranoid schizophrenia after killing six people in Tucson, Ariz., in 2011.

"People want to believe that someone who does something like this must be floridly psychotic," said Louis Schlesinger, professor of forensic psychology at the John Jay College of Criminal Justice in New York, who has studied mass killers since the 1970s. "They think, 'Ah, he's mentally ill; now I understand.' It makes people feel they and people they know would never behave this way."

The scarier prospect is that Holmes's psychological illness was more common, less severe and not easily detectable.

As forensic psychiatry experts try to figure out from afar what is wrong with Holmes, they are focusing on three details of the shooting: The targets were strangers to the killer, not colleagues or acquaintances; the shooter did not commit suicide or invite his own death at the hands of police; and Holmes warned authorities about his booby-trapped apartment before the explosives killed anyone.

REUTERS

▶ Experts are exploring the mind of James Holmes from afar.

Warning signs hard to detect

NEW YORK. Based on mass murderers he has studied, criminologist James Alan Fox says: "[There's] a consistent profile in which someone has a history of frustration and failure despite promise and aptitude. But they also have a very weak support system: They don't have [anyone] to put their thoughts in perspective."

"There are thousands and thousands of people who fit that pattern and do not kill anyone," Fox said. "You can't use it to predict who will become [a mass murderer]. These are not red flags, but yellow ones. They become red only in retrospect, when the blood flows."

REUTERS

Survival is seen as a clue

NEW YORK. Another clue to Holmes's mental state is that he clearly intended to survive the massacre, wearing body armor during the attack and then surrendering to authorities.

In contrast, say experts, most of the mass killers they call "pseudocommandos" — those who kill in public, plan meticulously and are armed to the teeth — expect to die in their rampage, noted Dr. James Knoll, a forensic psychiatrist at SUNY Upstate Medical University in Syracuse, in a 2010 study. Virginia Tech's Seung-Hui Cho killed himself, as did the two teenagers who fatally shot 13 people at Colorado's Columbine High School in April 1999.

"That [Holmes] didn't is an indication that he was different in psychological terms than the others we've studied," said Levin. REUTERS

Newsweek will eventually shift to publish online

NEW YORK. Newsweek will eventually transition to an online publication, owner IAC/InterActiveCorp said yesterday, marking the beginning of the end for the money-losing magazine's 79-year run as a print weekly.

IAC Chairman Barry Diller made the announcement during a quarterly conference call, saying the New York-based company aims to curb investments in the business. Newsweek is projected to lose as much as $22 million this year, according to a person with direct knowledge of the matter. Still, Diller stopped short of saying the magazine would undergo a "total" shift online. BLOOMBERG

New home sales tumble, but upward trend stays intact

WASHINGTON. New home sales recorded their biggest drop in more than a year in June and prices resumed their downward trend, dealing a setback for the budding housing market recovery.

Single-family home sales tumbled 8.4 percent to a seasonally adjusted 350,000-unit annual rate, the lowest rate in five months, the Commerce Department said yesterday.

The drop in new home sales last month came on the heels of a decline in home resales during the same period. REUTERS

Apple stock drops on missed estimates after iPhone lull

Slowing growth

Apple said sales in the quarter ending in September would fall to about $34 billion and that profit would fall to $7.65 a share. That compares with predictions by analysts for sales of $38 billion and profit of $10.27 a share.

Apple Inc. fell after reporting iPhone sales that missed analysts' projections, underscoring the computer maker's reliance on demand for the smartphone.

The company sold 26 million iPhones in the fiscal third quarter, shy of the 28.4 million predicted by analysts surveyed by Bloomberg. That caused Apple to miss analysts' quarterly sales and profit estimates for the second time since 2003.

Customers delayed purchases of existing iPhone versions while awaiting the next model. Samsung Electronics Co. releases several designs a year to defend its lead in the $219.1 billion smartphone market. That raises the stakes for Apple Chief Executive Officer Tim Cook, who relies on a once-a-year upgrade of the device that makes up half of the company's sales.

MARIO TAMA/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Analysts are predicting a new iPhone will be released by October.

"Pressure is mounting," said Michael Obuchowski, a portfolio manager at North Shore Asset Management LLC, an owner of Apple shares. "Because everybody else has a much faster design cycle, Apple has to come up with a new phone that's competitive not just when it comes out, but will stay competitive for a long period of time. That's going to be increasingly difficult."

62.5%

Apple's iPad will account for 62.5 percent of tablet sales this year, according to the International Data Corporation.

Net income climbed 21 percent to $8.82 billion, or $9.32 a share, in the June period, Cupertino, Calif.-based Apple said yesterday. Sales rose 23 percent to $35 billion. Analysts had predicted profit of $10.37 a share on revenue of $37.2 billion, the average of estimates compiled by Bloomberg.

While Apple is outgrowing its closest technology-industry peers, the company's sales climbed at the slowest pace since mid-2009. BLOOMBERG

Metro's Monica Weymouth shares her take on the world of gossip @monicaatmetro monica.weymouth@metro.us

Stewart 'deeply sorry' about affair

GETTY IMAGES

▶ The danger of having an affair with the director of your blockbuster: There are plenty of photos for us to choose from.

We always blamed Kristen Stewart's ever-present red carpet pout on being camera-shy. Maybe a weird rash. Possibly a Spanx situation. But we never suspected that the problem was Robert Pattinson, her much more photogenic boyfriend and "Twilight" co-star.

It seems, however, that while Stewart's been parading around Hollywood with Pattinson, she's also been having a fling with Rupert Sanders, her married "Snow White and the Huntsman" director. Us Weekly has incriminating photographs of the two snuggled up in Los Angeles on July 17, just a few days before Stewart and Pattinson attended the Teen Choice Awards together.

Witnesses tell Radar Online that Sanders, 41, and Stewart, 22, "were hardly able to keep their hands off one another" as they drove around L.A., stopping occasionally to make out in parking lots.

Kristen, what do you have to say for yourself?

"I'm deeply sorry for the hurt and embarrassment I've caused to those close to me and everyone this has affected," she said in a statement released yesterday. "This momentary indiscretion has jeopardized the most important thing in my life, the person I love and respect the most, Rob. I love him, I love him, I'm so sorry."

Kris, take it from us: Making creepy, inappropriate public appeals to Robert Pattinson in the gossip columns doesn't work. We've been trying for years, and he just doesn't bite.

Sanders' wife not warned

Not to be outdone, Sanders issued his own apology shortly after Stewart.

"I am utterly distraught about the pain I have caused my family," the director said in a statement. "My beautiful wife and heavenly children are all I have in this world. I love them with all my heart. I am praying that we can get through this together."

As for Sanders' wife, Liberty Ross, we doubt she's accepting the apology anytime soon. The British model seemed to learn about the affair along with everyone else yesterday, and proceeded to have a mini Twitter meltdown.

Before deactivating her account, she followed @UsWeekly and tweeted quotes from Marilyn Monroe and Maya Angelou, then signed off with a simple "Wow" — the 2012 equivalent of waking up to the "Love Actually" DVD menu in a puddle of Ben & Jerry's.

▶ Well, this is awkward.

Pattinson talks cheating

Robert Pattinson obviously won't be releasing a statement — he'll let some pretty young blonde do the talking next week. So for now, all we've got is his April chat in Vanity Fair, where he conveniently discussed affairs.

"There's a thing I've never got: That is, why do people cheat? I can understand the impulse," he said. "But not how you can keep two relationships going at the same time for long. I'm not the casual-affair kind of guy. If I choose to be with someone, it's because I really want it. When I have a relationship, I'm 100 percent into it."

In the news

Remembering Sherman Hemsley

Sherman Hemsley — who passed away Tuesday at the age of 74 — was the opposite of cranky George Jefferson, who he played on "The Jeffersons." Prior to making it as a sitcom star, South Philly native Hemsley did the overnight shift at Philadelphia's main post office at 30th Street and honed his craft at the Society Hill Playhouse.

"I couldn't believe that I could get paid to act," Hemsley said last year during a chat plugging a date at the Cherry Hill comedy club Sarcasm.

Hemsley was surprisingly humble. But what took folks really aback was what was on his iPod. "I love prog-rock," Hemsley said. "I can't wait for the new Yes album."

That album, unfortunately, won't drop until 2013, according to drummer Alan White. ED CONDRAN

Talking points

Undress me maybe?

Carly Rae Jepsen has reportedly reached out to police after having nude photos of herself stolen from her computer, according to TMZ. The "Call Me Maybe" singer's reps apparently received a tip about the hacking back in March and immediately reached out to Vancouver police, who are investigating. Police officials confirm to the site that an investigation is underway "in regards to a theft of electronic property belonging to Jepsen." The singer's reps did not respond to a request for comment.

'Modern Family' looking to increase household income

Cast members of the hit sitcom "Modern Family" have filed a lawsuit against 20th Century Fox TV to void their contracts after tense negotiations for the show's fourth season broke down, according to the Hollywood Reporter. Sofia Vergara, Ty Burrell, Julie Bowen, Jesse Tyler Ferguson and Eric Stonestreet initially filed the lawsuit, while co-star Ed O'Neill added his name as a plaintiff as a show of solidarity. The actors have rejected an offer of $150,000 per episode for Season 4, with increases each year leading to $325,000 should the show reach Season 9. They're reportedly looking for double that.

Rough start for Jackson and Kruger

Joshua Jackson and Diane Kruger have been dating happily for six years, but their relationship got off to a bumpy start, the "Fringe" star tells Us Weekly. "Our first date was a miserable one. I took her to an Italian restaurant, and there was some flower that was blooming. She was allergic to it so she sniffled and sneezed the entire time," Jackson remembers. "And when I get nervous, you might have noticed I talk a lot. So I just chewed her ear off for an hour and a half. It was amazing. I'm surprised she ever called back."

Community actor-vists

As photos emerged online Tuesday of Christian Bale visiting with victims of last week's mass shooting at a Colorado screening of "The Dark Knight Rises," we felt compelled to honor others in his profession who give back to their communities.

1. Mark Wahlberg is making headlines for his hilarious performance in "Ted," but the actor is also known for his annual golf tournament, which raises money for at-risk inner-city kids.

2. Not only a hero on the big screen, "The Amazing Spider-Man" himself, Andrew Garfield, is an ambassador for the Worldwide Orphans Foundation.

3. Charlie Sheen has pledged to donate 1 percent of the profits he makes from his new show "Anger Management" to the USO, an organization devoted to lifting the spirits of U.S. troops and their families. (We also kinda just wanted to show this photo of him presenting Slash with a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame from earlier this month.)

4. "Magic Mike" star Channing Tatum kept his clothes on and performed alongside his wife for the 2012 Revlon Concert, which raised millions of dollars to help save the rainforest.

5. "Hunger Games" star Josh Hutcherson won the Choice Movie Sci-Fi/Fantasy Actor award earlier this week at the Teen Choice Awards, but he also caught people's attention with his contribution to the group Straight But Not Narrow, which promotes positive change among straight teens in the way they view gay peers.

6. Actress Charlize Theron just portrayed the evil witch in "Snow White and the Huntsman," but she's quite different in her role as the director of the Charlize Theron African Outreach Program, which helps to provide HIV/AIDS testing, education and more in South Africa.

7. What girl wouldn't love a day at the spa? That's why "Journey 2: The Mysterious Island" star Vanessa Hudgens lent a hand to teens from the Make-a-Wish Foundation who got a chance to relax and get treated to manicures. ESTHER PACHECO

ETHEREAL SUMMER HAIR

We're obsessed with the romantic braided crown that stylist and Redken Creative Consultant Guido Palau created for the Spring '12 Valentino show. With temperatures in the 90s, it's the perfect time to sweep the hair off our sticky necks and into a dreamy updo. We headed to NYC's Cutler/Redken Salons where stylist Jenny Balding gave us a step-by-step tutorial. Warning: You'll need some French braiding skills and patience. Or better yet, find a girl friend who will come over and do it for you. TINA CHADHA

Tool of choice

"Spray a dry shampoo — especially if you have fine hair — to your roots and mid-length to add texture to your locks and for some more grip," says Balding. She likes Redken Powder Refresh ($8, www.redken.com).

▶ Pro tips:
1. Start with dirty hair.
2. Ruffle up the braids and pull some pieces out a little.

Balding's instructions

1 Divide your hair into three sections: the front, the crown and the back. The finer the hair, the thicker the sections need to be.

2 French braid the crown, braiding toward the right ear, and tie with a rubber band.

3 Braid the front section. Start from your left ear and work your way across the forehead until you get to behind the right ear.

4 Once your front braid has reached the right side, connect it with the crown braid.

5 Braid them into the remaining hair. Make sure to braid right down to the very tip.

6 Wrap the braid going from the left to right around your crown and pin.

7 Use three pins on each side and one in the center to secure your braid.

8 As you go through, pull some pieces out at the root to make your braids chunkier. "The messier the braids, the cooler it'll look," says Balding.

Square Enix and Nintendo have always had one of those on-again, off-again romances. Back in the NES and SNES days, these two Japanese megacorporations walked arm-in-arm like teenaged lovers. Sony came between them, however, and the PS1 and PS2 eras saw Nintendo bereft with nary a "Final Fantasy" to call its own. Well, uncork the bubbly — your favorite celebrity couple is back. Square Enix is supporting Nintendo's 3DS in a big way. Here are two just-released titles.

▶ "Theatrhythm Final Fantasy" shouldn't work, but it does.

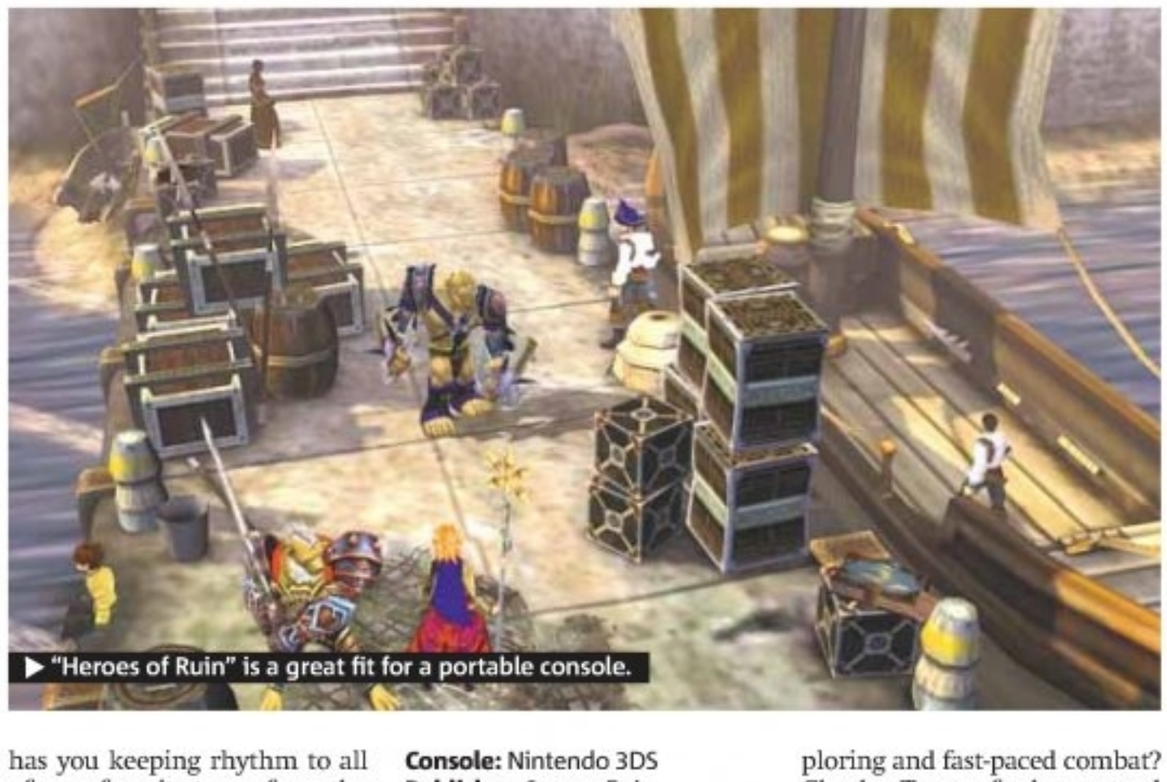
'Theatrhythm Final Fantasy'

Console: Nintendo 3DS
Publisher: Square Enix
Grade: ●●●●◐

Finally, everyone's favorite JRPG has come to the 3DS. Unfortunately, it's a music game. Wait, don't stop reading. It's a good music game.

Think of it as the best parts of something like PaRappa the Rapper with a fancy coat of "Final Fantasy" paint. The game has you keeping rhythm to all of your favorite tunes from the franchise's history.

It shouldn't work, but it does. It's cute, ridiculously addictive and full of inside jokes. The only downside? The game lacks an epic storyline that would have fit the source material like a mythril glove.



▶ "Heroes of Ruin" is a great fit for a portable console.

'Heroes of Ruin'

Console: Nintendo 3DS
Publisher: Square Enix
Grade: ●●●●◐

Do you long for the loot-filled goodness of a "Diablo" title, but your laptop starts hiccuping just by loading Google? Give "Heroes of Ruin" a try. It's a streamlined affair, but all of your favorite addictive game mechanics are firmly in place. Four-player online dungeon exploring and fast-paced combat? Check. Tons of classes and more than 600,000 items to find or craft? You betcha.

The graphics are serviceable, but not impressive. The game also rewards button-mashing over smart tactics.

Still, it's an online-enabled "Diablo" clone on a portable console. That right there is pretty cool.

Love 'Community'? Don't expect to see more like it

At the Television Critics Association press tour, the chairman of NBC Entertainment said the network is shifting its focus to broad comedy

Can a monkey save NBC?

The network that routinely finishes last in ratings among the big four broadcast companies is in a state of transition, most obviously seen in its approach to comedy this fall. Where NBC has been a haven for critically loved, cult-hit sitcoms that don't draw massive amounts of viewers, the network is now introducing comedies starring a lab-coat wearing monkey ("Animal Practice") and babies raised by clueless, yet caring, dads ("Guys with Kids").

"We're going to transition with our comedy programming and ... try to broaden the audience and broaden what the network does," Robert Greenblatt, chairman of NBC Entertainment, told journalists gathered at the Television Critics Association press tour in Beverly Hills, Calif., on Wednesday. "Those Thursday comedies, which the critics love and we love, tend to be a bit more narrow than we'd ultimately like as we go forward."

▶ Crystal stars as Rizzo and Justin Kirk as Dr. George Coleman on "Animal Practice," NBC's attempt at drawing a broader audience.

CHRIS HASTON/NBC

Greenblatt was referring to shows like "Parks and Recreation," "30 Rock" and, more specifically, "Community," which featured an entire episode that played out in the style of an 8-bit video game last season. Though all three were renewed for next season, as of late "Community" has received little love from NBC, which fired the show's creator, ordered only 13 episodes and pushed the show back to Fridays.

"The reason that we did 13 episodes of that and a couple of our other shows is because we really wanted to get more comedies on the schedule ... which isn't to say we couldn't decide at some point to extend those seasons," Greenblatt said. "I would love nothing more than 'Community' to have a following on Friday and to be able to continue it."

The new crop

"We didn't sit down and say, 'Let's find some shows with babies and animals everywhere,' but we did buy into visions from creators that we felt were funny, specific, emotional and original," said Jennifer Salke, NBC president of entertainment.

- Salke said NBC "wanted forever" to line up a series like "Animal Practice" that prominently featured furry friends in the storyline. Yet at the same time, she added, "you don't need big hijinks" to make a broad comedy work.
- NBC may be onto something: Later in the day, during a party held for critics, the most popular, most photographed celebrity of the evening was Crystal — the capuchin monkey star of "Animal Practice."

In your face

1 Whites of our eyes "Our highly mobile eyes are put to good use in social signaling. It's astonishing how much can be conveyed by a simple flick of the eyes." Angelina's leftward gaze is intriguing and complex.

2 Eyebrows "The signals we give out using our eyes are emphasized by eyebrows."

3 Exceptions to averageness "If there are faces that are naturally better than average, they must have something extra, and it should be possible to find out what that something is." (We can easily identify what part of Angelina's face makes her exceptionally beautiful.)

4 Femininity Angelia's high cheekbones help make her face strikingly feminine.

5 Healthy skin "Face scans reveal that people with more red in their face look healthier than people who have less red in their face." Angelina's face texture and color make her look radiant and healthy.

SCIENCE OF SEDUCTION

Author David Perrett takes a deeper look at beauty and attraction
Says personality and upbringing can influence what's attractive

It's simple to tell if a person is attractive, but what is it that makes someone so? Pointing out the traits that characterize beauty proves difficult, but David Perrett uses psychological studies and computer-generated faces to uncover the science of attraction in his book, "In Your Face."

"In the book I mentioned health, symmetry, sex typicality and youth," Perrett says. "But I do spend most chapters showing how despite these universals, beauty is still very much in the eye of the beholder because of our unique upbringing, our unique friends, our unique experiences in love and so on. And each of these builds in our minds a unique sense of what's attractive in faces."

We've all marveled at the couple that could be siblings and gotten the heebie jeebies when Freudian theories emerge. Perrett's book explains why we're attracted to individuals who resemble our parents and pinpoints the traits that make or break beauty.

He says that though we cannot change the face we're born with, that face can make us who we are.

"I think people's future behavior is being shaped by their face," Perrett says. "I'm a great believer in the feedback between the face and how the world treats us and therefore the creation of our own personality."

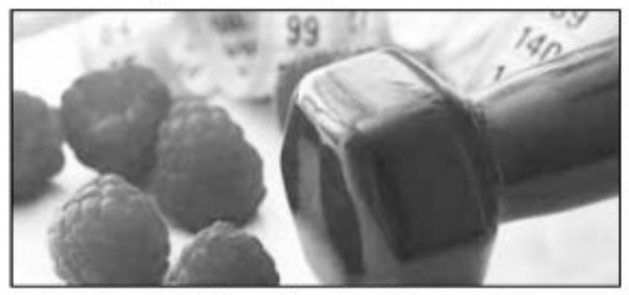
Urgent Health News
Experts surprised to discover fat burning effect in Raspberry Ketones
(Canoga Park, CA) In recent scientific studies, researchers have found that raspberry ketones affect the metabolism by increasing the release of two hormones, norepinephrine and adiponectin. Norepinephrine causes the body's temperature to rise which burns more fat. Adiponectin has direct control over your metabolism. When there are high levels of adiponectin, the cells are consistently releasing rather than storing fat. Simply put, thinner people have larger amounts while obese people have significantly lower levels.


"It's a miracle fat burner in a bottle" - Dr. Oz
Research and Development
Unfortunately, it takes an extremely large amount of raspberries to produce the required amount of ketones necessary to promote weight loss so the chemists at SimplePure Nutrition went to work. Using only natural, high quality ingredients, they developed a proprietary formula specifically designed to create the perfect metabolic balance ideal for weight loss. At press time their manufacturers were working overtime to meet demand for their free* trial offer.
SimplePure offers Free Bottle
With the exception of TV's Dr. Oz declaring that Raspberry Ketones were the "miracle fat burner in a bottle", the news about this recent discovery has been limited. SimplePure Nutrition is offering a free bottle of Raspberry Ketones so consumers can see the amazing effects for themselves.

Who could possibly support Paterno?

RE: "PATERNO NOW JUST ANY OTHER JOE": I just wanted to give kudos to Mr. Cataldi for not holding back on what he really thought about Joe Paterno and what he did to young people. No one in his or her right mind can continue to support a program or defend a person that allowed this tragedy to go unseen for so long. This was long overdue.

NCAA's Penn State sanctions go too far

Who does the NCAA think they're fooling? Fine Penn State $60 million? Check. No Bowl games for four years? Check. But voiding Penn State's victories between 1998 and 2011? Sorry, but you can't rewrite history. Those games were played. Does this mean all those teams Penn State beat didn't lose? Are they going to pretend those games never happened? Are they going to rewrite all those seasons' statistics? What a bunch of fools!

BRUCE BENNETT, VIA E-MAIL

Aurora killer could be valuable resource

For [alleged] Aurora shooter James Holmes (and all murderers), I oppose the death penalty — it's too damn good! But so are prisons' libraries and weight rooms. Make him repay society via: 1) Work: Sort garbage for recycling, dig ditches for America's infrastructure, pick crops for America's farmers; 2) Tests: Test new drugs, treatments, surgical techniques, food additives (eliminate animal tests, PETA!); and 3) Donations: Give blood weekly, spinal fluid and marrow monthly, half his liver annually (it grows back), one kidney/lung/eye, etc. And when he dies, screw his will: Donate all organs and assets to those who need and deserve them more.

J. ANDREW SMITH, VIA E-MAIL

God's word peeks over in print

Thanks to the Metro for choosing to show folks praying on the cover page Monday and for printing Omar Branch's good news on Wednesday. When decay abounds in this world, God's love never fails, never gives up and never runs out! When we put aside our pride and call upon the name of the Lord, we are saved! It is an incredible thought and an even better experience. Faith is not about picking splinters out of our neighbor's eyes while ignoring the planks in our own. The blood of Jesus gives hope to the hopeless and restores life in the face of all depression and disappointment. For the rest of my days, hallelujah!

Politicians should serve everyone

Some politicians will do anything to get the win in November. It would be nice to see such rascals pay as much attention to serving the public. Why not try to serve others, even those who are without photo IDs, rather than disenfranchising them? Serving everyone —now there's a novel idea!

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Even though they might not be as substantial as you'd hoped, be appreciative of any gains that come your way. Anything is better than coming up empty-handed.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. There is a possibility that certain key elements might not be as advantageous as you first thought, so be smart and carefully screen all proposals that are presented to you.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. You might know what you want, but if you are clueless about how to transmit your ideas, you won't get anywhere. Try to do your best to lucidly communicate your brainstorms.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Honor all the commitments you've made, even if you have second thoughts. Though other alternatives may look promising, keeping your word will count the most.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Don't hesitate to revive some of your long-standing plans if they didn't produce as hoped. Some kind of minor change might turn out to be just what the doctor ordered.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Spend any small surplus you might have on something you consider to be worthwhile, instead of frittering it away.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. If you feel what is being asked of you is unjust, don't make any concessions, even if you're under pressure. Make sure to take a firm position and stand up for what you believe.

▶ Cole Hamels potentially turned away extra money to stay with the Phillies. He admitted that fellow aces Roy Halladay and Cliff Lee helped twist his arm a bit.

Cole standard: Hamels stays loyal to roots

▶ Phillies ace inks $144 million extension ▶ Praises fans, winning culture ▶ Richest deal in club history

Cole Hamels' wife and son sat in the back. They were there to support the newest member of the millionaire aces club, which already includes Roy Halladay and Cliff Lee, after Hamels and the Phillies agreed on a six-year, $144 million contract extension.

As soon as Hamels exited the stage, his 3-year-old son Caleb, wearing his dad's No. 35 jersey, went racing toward him and shouted, "Hi Daddy!" Hamels scooped him up, slung him over his million-dollar arm and replied with a smile, "Did you have fun?"

By signing the deal — the largest one the Phillies have doled out to a pitcher and second-largest in MLB — Hamels ensured he'll be in red pinstripes through the 2018 season. There is a club option for 2019 with a no-trade clause.

The homegrown ace could have waited and filed for free agency at the end of the season. Instead, Hamels chose to remain with the ballclub that drafted him in the first round of the 2002 draft. He gave countless reasons why he potentially passed on more money, most notably the desire to play at Citizens Bank Park.

Quoted

"I was on the phone with my dad a couple days ago and I mentioned to him that I never imagined that I'd ever be in this position, ever."
COLE HAMELS

Wins for Hamels since making his MLB debut with the Phils on May 12, 2006 — that ranks first among NL pitchers.

"You want to go out and play for a reason and the reason is to win World Series, to play in front of sellout crowds, to play in front of a Phillie nation of fans everywhere that are showing up on the road, that are cheering you on," he said. "Those are the reasons that we play this game and want to play it for as long as we possibly can, until they take the ball out of our hand and tell us we can't."

The negotiations began before spring training. Neither side set a deadline because Hamels wanted to keep talks open. It took seven months, but they finally hashed it out.

"The motto is the Fightin' Phils, so you never count them out until the very end," Hamels said. "I wanted to give the Phillies every opportunity. It's really hard to leave a place where you had so many great memories. I really do feel this is the place that I do call home and I want to call home for a really long time."

Hamels feeling Brotherly Love

World Series MVP rewarded for loyalty ◗ Hopes to contend for another title ◗ Will Phillies be sellers?

The ballpark was still pretty empty around noon, about an hour before first pitch between the Phillies and Brewers. But PA announcer Dan Baker came over the loudspeakers to inform fans to look up at PhanaVision to watch a special announcement. The organization was streaming the Cole Hamels' press conference live. If there was ever an indication of how much the city loves its left-handed ace, there it was.

Phils president Dave Montgomery acknowledged the organization considered his popularity at the bargaining table. In the midst of a very disappointing season, the team didn't want to lose a fan favorite.

"We've been fortunate to have the good fan support and we wanted to do the things that hopefully give our fans the belief that good times lie ahead as well," Montgomery said.

Hamels seemed to indicate that if he could play for free he would.

"Money has never been the issue or reason why I get on that mound every day and try to win ball games," he said. "I know it just comes with it, but ultimately I play because I purely enjoy the game and want to win, and this, I feel, is the best opportunity for me to win another championship."

To which Phillies GM Ruben Amaro replied, "You would have played for free?"

Well, not exactly. Hamels fully intends to cash that record-setting paycheck.

"I learned in economics there's no such thing as a free lunch," Hamels said.

▶ Hamels can buy a lot of champagne with his new $144 million contract.

What about next year?

Phillies™

THE DEAL:

The Phillies' payroll will be the most talked about topic in the coming days. The Phils have $93 million tied into four players — Cole Hamels, Cliff Lee, Roy Halladay, Ryan Howard — in 2013. That's a lot of money for a team with the second-highest payroll in baseball ($174 million on Opening Day), which means the Phils still may be sellers at the July 31 non-waiver trade deadline. Hunter Pence, Shane Victorino and even Cliff Lee have surfaced in recent days as potential trade bait.

ANALYSIS:

The Phillies are trying to stay below the $178 million luxury tax threshold, a number team president Dave Montgomery admitted they are "probably not" under. GM Ruben Amaro Jr. definitely has his "work cut out for him" — Montgomery's words, not ours — in 2013, when he will most likely be forced to fill holes at third base, center field, right field, left field (Pence is arbitration-eligible and seeking $14 million) and in the bullpen.

"We don't have an open wallet," Amaro said. "It's my job to try to put the pieces together in the right fashion."

So, will the Phillies be buyers or sellers Tuesday?

Said Montgomery: "Someone asked me if we are buyers or sellers and my answer to that is one thing: 'We're trying to be improvers.'"

Would the Phils trade Lee again?

▶ Rollins is mobbed by Jonathan Papelbon and Juan Pierre after getting the game-winning hit yesterday for the Phils.

Phillies win again, refuse to give up on 2012 season

Seven is the Phillies' lucky number these days.

When Jimmy Rollins came to the plate with two outs in the 10th inning, he had Milwaukee right where he wanted them. The game was tied 6-6 and Rollins stroked a game-winning single to send the Phillies into hysterics again.

That is four straight dramatic, come-from-behind wins — three of the walk-off variety — for the home nine. The final score in the last three victories: 7-6. Suddenly, the Phillies look like the team that captured five straight NL East crowns.

"It shows we haven't given up," Chase Utley said. "I like our chances moving forward."

Michael Schwimer (2-1) earned the win despite allowing an unearned run in the 10th. Erik Kratz, who hit a two-run homer Tuesday night to spark a six-run eighth-inning rally, delivered with a clutch double with John Mayberry Jr. on first base. Then, Carlos Ruiz stepped in as a pinch-hitter and smacked a sacrifice fly to tie it.

"We were playing kind of rough at the end today and stayed with it and came back. That was good," manager Charlie Manuel said. "We did enough to get by. Things are starting to work for us."

MIKE GREGER

The art of the comeback

The Fightin' Phils are living up to their nickname with four straight comebacks:

Yesterday
Jimmy Rollins delivers game-winning RBI single to cap two-run 10th inning for 7-6 Phillies victory. It marked the team's first three-game sweep of the season.

Tuesday
Down 6-1, Erik Kratz fuels six-run eighth with two-run blast, followed by Carlos Ruiz's three-run double and Hunter Pence's RBI single. Phils beat Brewers, 7-6.

Monday
Ty Wigginton's sacrifice fly completed a four-run, ninth-inning rally to beat Brewers, 7-6. The Phils had been 0-42 when trailing after eight frames before that.

Sunday
Rollins' RBI single, in the 12th inning, gives Phils 4-3 win over Giants. The win snapped a seven-game losing streak at the Bank.
